MISFITS and FINE OF MERCHANT TAILURS' MISFITS and FINE CLOTHING. Our reputation in Richmond is well established for handling the best goods and sellidg them with a smaller profit than any other house. This time we open an entirely fresh stock which has been purchased within the past week. Now we would call special attention to ONE FACT: everybody knows that within the past two weeks two of the most prominent wholesale dealers and manufacturers of New York have made an assignment, and their goods have been ferced on the market. The were sold at auction for cash. No, ict me correct the last statement—they were not sold, they were sharphiered, and we got a good big slice of the slaughter, and, with our usual liberatity, propose to share the slice we got with the clothing huyers during the coming fall and winter. We therefore most respectfully invite the ter. We therefore most respectfully livite the public to visit our store and look over the stock. The quality of the goods are unsurpassed, and the prices the cheapest in town. Remember, everything is fresh—no old stock.

groom is a citizen of Savannah, Ga., and is of the firm of Henry Solomon & Son, wholesale grocery merchants.

Entering the synagogue, the bridal party were preceded by five sisters of the bride, the two youngest dressed in Mother Hubard style—lace, over white satin. These were accompanied by a cousin of the bride, little Flora Landeaur, of Jacksonville, Fla., who were white satin. The other sisters were in dresses of colors—green, white, and pink. With this group was a sister of the greem in light-blue surah, with trimmings of oriental lace. She was accompanied by Miss May Landeaur, dressed in pink cashmere. Then came the bridal party proper in the following order:

Her veil was rich and descended in graceful form. She carried a bouquet of pare white rosebuds. Of the bridesmaids, Miss Rosa Lee Loventein wore pink surah, with trimmings of Vandyke lace; Miss Greenwald, green surah, oriental lace; Miss Daisy Rosenbaum, lilae satin, oriental lace; Miss Minnie Rosenbaum, corn-colored surah with hand-painted front of red poppies. Each bridesmaid carried a bouquet of roses of color to harmonize with her dress, and were as a souvenir of the occasion and present from the groom a gold bangle ring with date (14th October, 1884,) and his monogram engraved thereon. Each placed the ring upon the bride's finger, and the minister gave to the twain to taste wine from two goblets; one of sweet, the other of bitter, emblematic of joys and sorrows which as true husband and wife they rows which as true husband and wife they must taste in life's journey.

The ceremony over, the bridal party drove to Sänger Hall, where the reception was held. There the bride and groom were presented to hundreds of their friends, and received cordial congratulations and good wishes expressed in any number of ways, but all embodying the hope that life's rath may be full of flowers and bare of path may be full of flowers and bare of Kicking at a Nouse.

Ordinarily it is not very dangerous or hazardeus to kick at a passing mouse; but our popular West-End druggist, Jesse Child, at his handsome store at Main and Third streets, recently injured himself in that way, and was confined to his house for two weeks in consequence thereof. He fractured the lower muscles of the right leg, causing poinful and disabling injury. He was prudent enough, however, to carry a yearly/accident policy in the old and reliable Travellers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., represented here by Colonel John W. Gordon, Agent, No. 5 north Tenth street, and was promptly paid the weekly indemnify to which his policy entitled him. Accidents are always happening to those who "don't travel much," and this instance shows that the quietest professional and business-men are as liable as any ethers to the thousand hazards of life, from morning till night and at home or abroad. The whiskey sold by us is manufactured by a process of distillation known only to ourseives, and when distilled is entirely free from fusel oil (the poisonous quality of most all whiskeys), and is therefore absolutely pure, no coloring malter or other deleterious matter being in it. Its general use by the medical profession of the South—its sale being pushed by 247 mercantile houses in the State of Maryland, our home—is the best proof of its merit. The Whiskey will absolutely cure Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It is an indisposable tonic for tired and nursing mothers, and the best known remedy for those afflicted with hemorrbages, pulmonary complaints, or other symptoms of Consumption. For the sideboard in the family nothing equals it, in both purity of taste and color. The following are some of the many testimonials received:

The following testimonial from the great

itself as to the purity and medicinal quality of our whiskey:

The Duffy Malt Whiskey Company, Balti-Gentlemen,-I take pleasure in testifying to you that I have made an analysis of your Barley Mait Whiskey, which gave a very gratifying result. Your Malt Whiskey, obtained mostly by Your Malt Whiskey, obtained mostly by extract of mait convulsion and a very careful fermentation and distillation, is entirely free from fusel oil and any of those similarly obnoxious alcohols which are so often found in whiskeys. Therefore it can be recommended as extremely fit for medical purposes. Dr. M. E. Arender.

such success as to win great applause. She especially distinguished herself in 'Olivia,' at the Union-Square Theatre, and in 'Divorce,'' at Daly's. About eight weeks ago her mother secured her an engagement with the "Burr Oaks'' company, and then, owing to bad treatment at the hands of her husband, Mrs. Ferrier left for St. Louis to start in that city as a dressmaker.

Meanwhile little Margaret travelled through the eastern States with the "Burr Oaks'' company and wound up in Brooklyn at the Grand Opera-House two weeks ego. Her father, who has the reputation of being a good-for-nothing loafer, and who was twice on Biackwell's Island for assaulting his wife, collected Margaret's salary and took her away from the company. She had been paid at the rate of $10 per week, board and travelling expenses being provided for by the management. Mr. Ferrier left her in charge of Mrs. Nicholls, of No. 160 west Thirty-sixth street, in the capacity of a common servant grit. Last Monday evening little Margaret asked permission to go and see some friends in Brooklyn. Mrs. Nicholls told her she might go if she returned by 6 o'clock, otherwise she would be shut out. Margaret was detained later than she expected, and fearing to return to Mrs. Nicholls remained with her friends in Brooklyn. On Thursday Mrs. Nicholls saw the child on Broadway, and banded her over to the care of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, where she has been till yesterday morning.

Mrs. Lovenstein wore a dress of black satin, trummed with Duchesse lace; Mrs. Solomon (mother of the groom) had on a moire black trimmed with velvet.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. Harris, the pastor, and consisted of a prayer and address in English and the reading of the marriage ceremony in Hebrew. During the latter the groom placed the ring upon the bride's finger, Walking Straight Into the Hands of a United States Marshal.

Several weeks ago J. B. Hammond, postmaster of the village of Patchogue, Long Island, disappeared, leaving a note in which he said that he was going into the woods to commit sucide. An examination of Hammond's accounts showed that he had stolen about $1,000. About a week after the disappearance a rumor was circulated that Hammond's body had been found in the Great South bay. Last week Hammond's son Charles, a lad of seventeen, was arrested, with a young man named Willis, on a charge of opening registered letters and appropriating the contents. Both boys are now in Raymond-Street Jail awaiting trial on that charge.

The Herald of yesterday says: Blue-eyed and tan-faced Captain Charles B. Dix glowed with enthusiasm yesterday as he announced to a Herald reporter in the office of McKay & Dix, No. 47 South street, that he had received a letter from one of his captains, in which was information to the effect that a quantity of relies from the lost Jeannette had just been found. Flourishing a bit of manuscript the Captain added that the letter was from Captain Alexander Wilson, of the bark Fluorine, and that it had been written on September 12th at Irvigtut, Greenland, and forwarded to Phitadelphia by the Tryola.

Street jail awaiting trial on that charge. Hammond, senior, instead of going into the woods to commit suicide, went to a quiet retreat in Connecticut. While there he ascertained that his bondsmen had made good the deficiency of $1,009, and was told that there would be no prosecution. Rid of fear on that score he went boldly to Brooklyn Monday and entered the United States District Court, on Montague street, for the purpose of making some inquiries about his son. Marshal Tate met Hammond just as he was entering the building and at once placed him under arrest. Hammond was taken before United States Commissioner Alica Tuesday morning.

"When Captain Wilson arrived from Irvigitit last June, you remember." said Captain Dix, "he then brought the news of a great discovery of Jeannette relies, a description of which was published at the time in full in the Herald. A great controversy then arose also between Engineer Melville, Dr. Bassel, the scientic man of the Hall expedition, and myself as to the genulineness of the supposed relies. I have made thirteen trips to the Arctic. For twenty years I was a commander at sea. At the time of the discovery I held that the alleged Jeannette relies were very probably genuine, and it was held in opposition to my views that they could not have drifted so great a distance as from the place of the Jeannette wreck to the spot where they were found. Captain Wilson returned from Philadelphia to Irvigitut on August 22d with instructions to bring back with him all information concerning the newly-found Jeannette relies and, if possible, to bring the relies with him."

Captain Dix then allowed the reporter to see the letter he had received from Captain Wilson, but, owing to the fact that in the unin it was of a personal nature, only the following extract could be obtained:
